

A dense tropical forest scene with various green plants and trees.

NUSANTARA FOREVER

Jakarta is the capital of Indonesia, a metropolis home to over 30 million people

Environmental, overpopulation and infrastructure challenges are causing Jakarta to sink at dangerous rates

In 2019, the government announced that the capital will be moved from Jakarta to Nusantara

Nusantara is promised to be a “sustainable forest city” four times the size of Jakarta

The Bornean jungle is home to an indigenous population who rely on it for shelter, food and medicine

Indonesians call it the “lungs of the world”

As construction progresses, an area equal to 170 football fields of forest has been cleared of all its trees

THE LINE is a revolutionary city that puts humans first, providing an unprecedented urban living experience while preserving its surrounding nature.

'It's being built on our blood': the true cost of Saudi Arabia's $500bn megacity

It has been billed as humanity's next chapter, but beneath the glitz veneer of Neom lies a story of threats, forced eviction and bloodshed.

The Line, Neom, Saudi Arabia

Niemeyer's Brasilia: Does it work as a city?

Brasilia, Brazil

The bizarre Chinese city built to look like Paris that's almost completely empty

Construction at Tianducheng, eastern China, began in 2007. Great things were envisioned for the new city: large boulevards,...

Tianducheng, China

Egyptian president says inauguration of new capital to mark "birth of new state"

New Administrative Capital, Egypt

Nusantara is expected to be inaugurated in August 2024, will it solve the nation's problems?

Nusantara Forever

is a project of IAAC, the Institute for Advanced Architecture of Catalonia, developed in the Master in Advanced Architecture (MAA01) 2023/24 by students:

Claudia Gowgiel, Gaurang Kaushik
Naji Altala, Soundouss Aboussekhra

Faculty: Déborah López
Hadin Charbel, and Joris Putteneers